CASTELLO DI LERICI:

www.castellodilerici.it

The uppermost towers of Castello San Giorgio deliver stunning views across to picturesque Portovenere, the three islands that appear to bob in the bay, and back to La Spezia and some of its industrialized suburbs, which seem benign at this distance. Inside the castle is a pretty Gothic era chapel of some interest, but also a museum dedicated to geopaleontology - the history of dinosaurs in the area around the town.

The history of dinosaurs may be well known but the same cannot be said about the earliest days of human habitation in and around Lerici. However, archaeological evidence indicates that the area around the Golfo dei Poeti was occupied by the Etruscans as early as the 7th century BC. Lerici was used by them as a commercial and military port. After the Etruscans were conquered by the Romans, Lerici continued in that role for some centuries.
